the voice of australia's oil and gas industry

about associate membership

Since 1959, the Australian Petroleum Production and Exploration Association Limited (APPEA) has been the peak national body representing the collective interests of the upstream oil and gas exploration and production industry.

APPEA's full member companies explore for and produce Australia's oil and gas resources. These companies currently account for an estimated 98 per cent of the nation's petroleum production.

In addition, APPEA also represents many associate member companies that provide a wide range of goods and services to industry.

APPEA assists its members by working with the Australian, state and territory governments to ensure that the regulatory and commercial framework promotes investment and maximises the return to the Australian community from finding and developing the nation's oil and gas resources.

APPEA aims to secure conditions that help its member companies operate safely, sustainably and profitably. APPEA also works to increase community and government understanding of the upstream petroleum industry by publishing information about its activities and economic importance to the nation.

The association regularly conducts forums for exchanging ideas and helping develop the industry's policy positions.

There are three types of APPEA membership:

- full member
- associate member
- honorary life member.

An associate member of APPEA must be:

- a company with bona fide interests in the objectives, influence and interests of APPEA
- or
- a party that provides services in the ordinary course of business to full members of APPEA.

There are three categories of associate membership:

Category 1 Small companies, government agencies, educational institutions and small service/supply providers.

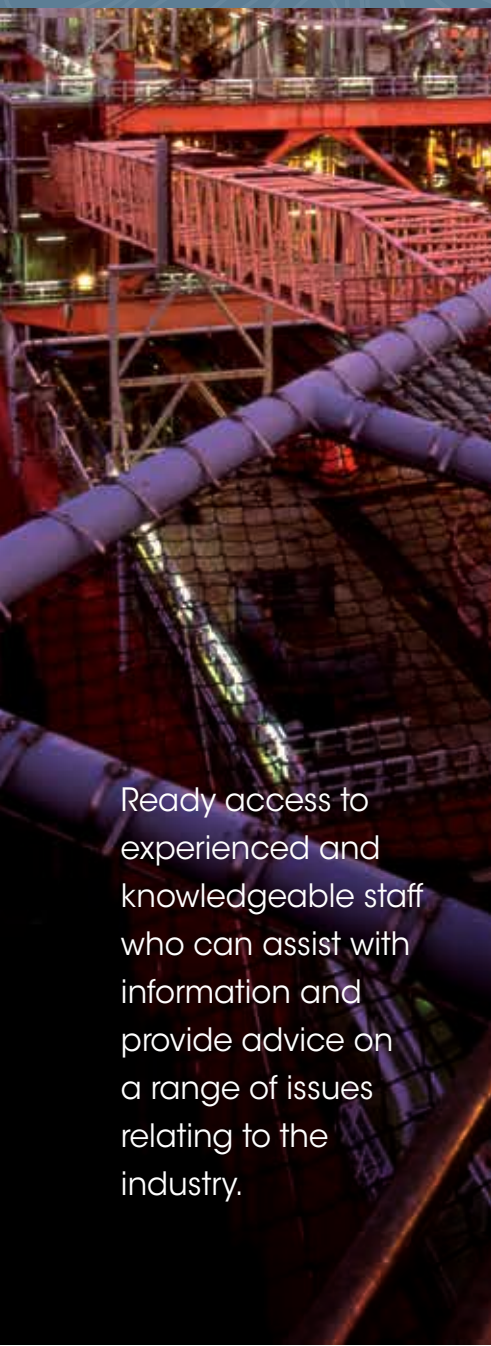

Category 2 Service and supply organisations including financial/commercial, legal, environmental, and technical support service companies, equipment and/or hardware suppliers, data processors and on-shore transport and storage.

Category 3 Field operation companies including EPCM contractors, drilling, seismic, marine and other field service companies.

Associate members benefit from APPEA's advocacy work, access to specialist expertise, networking opportunities and recognition by full members of an associate member's commitment to the industry.

benefits of associate membership

Ready access to experienced and knowledgeable staff who can assist with information and provide advice on a range of issues relating to the industry.

Membership of APPEA enables you to keep up-to-date with policy and legal changes that can directly or indirectly affect your business.

APPEA's work to enhance the competitiveness of the upstream sector is of direct interest to your business. A growing exploration and development sector means a larger potential client base, both now and in the future, and that means increased potential business opportunities for you. APPEA policies on taxation, access to resources and local industry participation directly enhance the commerciality of the upstream sector and therefore your client/customer base.

APPEA full members are increasingly making health, safety, environmental and security issues part of the criteria for awarding contracts. Therefore, APPEA policies on these issues are increasingly as relevant for associate member companies as they are for full member companies.

APPEA's associate members have ready access to a specialist policy team with expertise on federal and state-based policy matters and important operational areas that affect the industry, including:

- tax and commercial matters
- energy markets
- greenhouse policies
- environmental and regulatory policies
- exploration and access policies
- safety policies and initiatives.

Notification and analysis of policy and regulatory announcements

APPEA associate members receive information on policy, regulatory and workplace matters that may affect their company and their client companies.

APPEA members receive information and updates on APPEA's advocacy work and industry news through the APPEA Members' Report, Flowline and other electronic newsletters, and the annual report.

APPEA members also receive alerts and preventative advice on critical workplace safety issues.

APPEA member-only forums and networking events

APPEA associate members can attend member-only forums organised by the association throughout the year, including the annual general meeting.

Member-only forums, such as the Members' Lunch, are also held as part of the annual APPEA Conference and Exhibition.

The association's Tax and Commercial Conference, a key biennial forum addressing commercial issues affecting the petroleum exploration and production industry, is another member-only event.

Significant discounts at APPEA conferences and events

Associate members receive significant discounts to attend APPEA events as a delegate and exhibit their company products and services (at applicable events), including the annual APPEA Conference and Exhibition — the upstream oil and gas industry's premier annual gathering.

APPEA seminars and conference events include:

- APPEA Conference and Exhibition
- APPEA Health, Safety and Environment Conference
- APPEA Tax and Commercial Conference
- Introduction to the Oil and Gas Industry Seminars.

To take advantage of the benefits of associate membership, complete an application form available from www.appea.com.au or request a form from APPEA.

Your application will be considered at the next APPEA Board meeting following receipt of your application.
